CTHB Law Office by Salon Architects

Office Interior Reflects Open Values of Law Firm

Salon Architects has remodelled the interior of a modular office building in Istanbul, Turkey. The architects transformed the repetitive office block into a dynamic space. Focusing on ‘creating a tension between the linear and nonlinear’, the design reflects the open, unbiased qualities of the law firm who are based there.

A streak of linear lighting runs the length of the corridor, reflecting the angular shapes created on the office walls and floors, guiding visitors between service spaces and meeting rooms. Details within the offices such as shelving and lamps also share the jagged aesthetic, linking the somewhat, simpler inner spaces with accents of the communal areas. The largely monochromatic colour scheme is given a touch of warmth with the use of wooden surfaces throughout.
